Giblets life after Niblet left

I remember it all happening. I was just sniffing a flower when a coyote came looking hungry. He asked if I had food, and my reply was no. Then he collapsed and brought him in. I gave him so fruit hoping he'll regain strength, and he opened his eyes, knowing he was going to be fine. We became friends over the days. About on the third day, he said I was weak, defenseless, hopeless. That really hurt and I tried ignoring him, but he kept following me, saying those things. Then when I let my guard down, he pounced. He tackled me inside the barn and pushed me against the wall. Then, he did the one thing I couldn't imagine him doing; he overpowered me. I was begging for him to stop, but he kept yelling at me and saying I was weak. I believed him. I didn't fight back, I cried and screamed of the pain and damage he was doing to me. He finally stopped and got off me. He whispered in my ear that I was his property now. Then he bit my head and ripped off a bow and some fur and spit it to the ground. I began sobbing again. I curled up in a ball, hoping he would go away or leave me alone. Then of all miracles, Niblet came in with a flower in his mouth, unaware of what just happened. The coyote ran off past Niblet, and I ran to Niblet crying. I explained what happened and Niblet comforted me as best he could. The coyote took away lots of things, but he didn't take away my love for Niblet. Niblet said I wasn't safe here at the farm and me and him left. Niblet lead me into the forest, claiming he was going back to the shelter. I didn't trust him, not after what has just happened. I bet break free and run off. Nimble yells my name as I scurry into the woods. I began sobbing and laid down after I lost all my strength. Then some coyote came and I ran the other way. They caught up and attack me. I don't remember what happened afterwards, but when I woke up, I was in a cave with a collar chained around my neck. I was alone in the darkness, scared for days, hours, when the coyotes came back and saw me awake. I prayed they weren't going to harm me, but I was dead wrong, and I was assaulted. I screamed, hoping to be heard, when some random coyote came in and said that there was a herd of cows somewhere. When they left to see, the coyote freed me and led me to somewhere in the city. He said I was going to be safe here at the pound. He said he loved a dog too, and that he'll help the best he can. He left me at a payphone and I ran in the street. Good enough, a car eventually called a shelter and got me sent there. It was shelter 17, and Niblet was there too. He and I practically leaped on each other. When got inside, but I stayed close to Niblet. There were only two girls there and the rest were boys. I didn't trust any of them. The one I feared the most was Lucky, having been the only dog who found love in the shelter. I pressed on Niblet, fearing for myself and my self-confidence. Once I lost that, I'd lose myself. Niblet stayed with me, holding me close, trying to comfort me. Niblet called Squirt over and said that he needed to get someone who'll understand and help me as best they could. Squirt only looked at Lucky, saying that he understands every dog here. I felt like collapsing. Lucky look like an overly trusted dog and nothing about him told me that he was trouble. Thankfully, Niblet stayed with me as Lucky talked to me and tried to make me feel better, but I held on to Niblet tighter. Lucky looked surprised and worried. He told us a story about his father how he tried escaping and never came back, then fell in love with someone else and had a puppy together. I felt exhausted and fell asleep. I woke up when everyone was gone but Niblet. I asked why he was here and he said he was staying with me until the night before ends. He looked tired and I said he should get some sleep to. We slept next to each other. I fell asleep again and awoke to the smell of blood. I opened my eyes and heard Niblet yelling and screaming as two coyotes were attacking him. He told me to run. I was to scared to think and I ran, leaving Niblet. I got on to the top of the shelter grounds and was attacked by two coyote. I tried fighting back, but I was no match for them. They could tell I was scared for my life. One coyote viciously told me how they were going to drown me for not letting their leader take me to them for the same reason the pack leader did. I was scared enough to yell some humans name to help, but no one was around. The other coyote licked my neck, saying how they were either going to drown me or crush me neck. I screamed at the top of my lungs. One coyote chuckled and nodded to the other coyote. He put his mouth over my neck and bit down. Air slipped out my lungs as I tried to scream of the pain. He let go of my neck and started watching my life slip away. He licked the blood off his teeth. I was struggling for air, but at the same time crying of the pain in my neck. The coyote scurried off laughing and left me there to die. Then Niblet came, and dragged me to a vet. The vet performed surgery and said I was going to be fine. I knew I wasn't safe. Niblet cuddled next to me and both fell asleep. I woke up and the vet just finished putting bandages on my neck. I stayed inside with the vet and knew I was safe. Later on, Niblet woke up and we stayed at a room the vet provided. We talked and Niblet seemed nervous about asking me something. I told him I could take it, and he said wanted to have pups and get married. My blood felt cold. Not that I didn't want to, but I couldn't believe he'd ask that after what happened. Niblet said never mind and went back to sleep. I licked his neck and fell asleep too. Later on, I felt a little weird inside. I felt more hungry and aggressive. I turned to Niblet and asked him if I was okay. He said sure I was. Then he turned his head with that type of look on his face. I asked if I was okay, and Niblet said that the coyote who assaulted me ended up getting me pregnant. I wanted to cry so hard. I was attacked multiple times and now I pregnant. Then I remembered the other coyote who played with me. They could be the father too. Niblet kissed me to go to sleep. I couldn't. I was so hungry and hurting to fall asleep. I got some food and laid next to Niblet wide awake. Later on, I went back to the farm with Niblet there to protect me. We stayed there for months. Niblet felt sad for leaving pound puppies to stay and protect me, but for a dog who isn't so smart, he understood me better than anyone. I don't recall how it happened, but Niblet became my husband. I would listen to when he talked and we'd get all emotionally to each other. I kissed him one time. One day, I felt like I was going to explode. It didn't take a genius to figure out what was going on. Niblet panicked and I was able to convince him to get farmer Frank. He ran out and barked louder than I ever heard. I could feel my stomach tear open. I shrieked as I felt the worst pain ever. Then I felt relief and exhaustion. I could hear pups yelping. I don't remember hearing about this, but I began licking them to get them clean. A few were covered in a tad of blood, but they were fine. 6 puppies. I had 6 puppies. I felt happy actually. I knew they must've been hungry and thirsty some I let them feed. They had quite the appetite. Niblet came back with farmer Frank behind him and saw the puppies were born. Farmer Frank looked amazed. He got some water and dog food for me and I felt like falling asleep.
